Sharing Content Online

As an AIP Publishing author you are welcome to post your accepted manuscript on your website, your employer's site, in an institutional or subject repository (such as arXiv), and to scholarly collaboration networks immediately upon acceptance, with no embargo.

To share the published version of your work, please use the the following guidelines for journals (#journals) and books (#books).

Web Posting Guidelines for Journal Authors

For personal and employers' web sites

- You may post the accepted manuscript immediately after acceptance, using the credit line formatting below

- You may post the Version of Record (VOR) 12 months after publication, with the credit line and a link to the VOR on AIP Publishing's site

For institutional or funder-designated repositories (e.g., DOE Pages)

- You may deposit the accepted manuscript immediately after acceptance, using the credit line formatting below
- You may deposit the VOR 12 months after publication, with the credit line and a link to the VOR on AIP Publishing's site

For noncommercial free-access preprint servers (e.g., arXiv)

- You may post the preprint prior to submission and/or acceptance, using the credit line formatting below
- You may post the accepted manuscript immediately after acceptance, using the credit line formatting below
- You may update with the VOR 12 months after publication, with the credit line and a link to the VOR on AIP Publishing's site

For commercial scholarly collaboration networks (e.g., ResearchGate)

- You may post/upload the accepted manuscript (AM) to your author profile page and make it publicly available
- You may post/upload the AM to a publications folder and make it available to anyone visiting your profile page
- You may post/upload the AM to public group areas and make it available to anyone who visits the group page
- You may send the AM by email or private message to fulfill full-text article requests by researchers outside your groups

- You may post/upload the Version of Record (VOR) in private libraries, available only to you

- You may post/upload the VOR in private groups, available only to group members

- You may send the VOR by email or private message to fulfill full-text article requests by a researcher outside your groups for their own personal scholarly use, but not for further distribution or posting

AIP Publishing supports the STM "voluntary principles for article sharing on scholarly collaboration networks (http://www.stm-assoc.org/2015_06_08_Voluntary_principles_for_article_sharing_on_scholarly_collaboration_n

Format for credit lines

- After publication please use: "This article may be downloaded for personal use only. Any other use requires prior permission of the author and AIP Publishing. This article appeared in (citation of published article) and may be found at (URL/link for published article abstract).

- Prior to publication please use: "The following article has been submitted to/accepted by [Name of Journal]. After it is published, it will be found at Link (https://publishing.aip.org/resources/librarians/products/journals/)."

- For Creative Commons licensed material, please use: "Copyright (year) Author(s). This article is distributed under a Creative Commons Attribution (CC BY) License."

Creating Links

To create a link to your article, please find its CrossRef digital object identifier on the article's abstract page and format the URL like this: https://doi.org/digital_object_identifier

For example, to link to G. A. Gibson et al., Appl. Phys. Lett. 86, 051902 (2005), you would format the URL

as: https://doi.org/10.1063/1.1856690
(https://doi.org/10.1063/1.1856690) — and the entire citation would appear as:
G. A. Gibson et al., Appl. Phys. Lett. 86, 051902
(2005) https://doi.org/10.1063/1.1856690
(https://doi.org/10.1063/1.1856690)

Self-archiving information for Plan S compliance

- For articles published in a subscription-based journal where the author has not chosen the Author Select open access option, the terms of AIP Publishing's License to Publish Agreement govern the rights associated with the accepted manuscript and Version of Record.

- Our self-archiving policy allows for the accepted manuscript to be shared immediately after acceptance without embargo, under our standard licensing terms.

- Authors subject to Plan S compliance, which requires that a CC BY license be applied to the accepted manuscript, should elect the Author Select option to publish open access in one of our subscription-based journals, or publish in one of our gold open access titles.

Please direct any questions to the Rights Office at rights@aip.org (mailto:rights@aip.org).

Web Posting Guidelines for Book Authors

FOR PERSONAL AND EMPLOYERS' WEB SITES

- For authored books, authors may post up to 10% of the total content of the book using the final submitted manuscript version (SM)* 24 months after publication, using the credit line formatting below.
- For individually authored chapters, authors may post their final submitted manuscript (SM)* 24 months after publication, using the credit line formatting below.

FOR INSTITUTIONAL OR FUNDER-DESIGNATED REPOSITORIES (E.G., DOE PAGES)

- For authored books, authors may post up to 10% of the total content of the book using the final submitted manuscript version (SM)* 24 months after publication, using the credit line formatting below.
- For individually authored chapters, authors may post the final submitted manuscript (SM)* of their chapter 24 months after publication, using the credit line formatting below.

FOR NONCOMMERCIAL FREE-ACCESS PREPRINT SERVERS (E.G., ARXIV)

- For authored books, authors may post up to 10% of the total content of the work in preprint form at any point.
- For individually authored chapters, authors may post the preprint version of their chapter at any point.

* The final submitted manuscript (SM) is the version of the manuscript submitted after input from the development editor but prior to any copyediting or formatting by the publisher.
